The Jerry Clay Scholarship Fund

Decades of attrition has left the U.S. with a shortage of welders. The average age of a welder in the country is 55 and the wave of coming retirements will leave U.S. manufacturers at a disadvantage. The American Welding Society estimates that by 2020 there will be a shortage of 290,000 professionals. The Jerry Clay Scholarship was established by his family to promote technology and development with the intent to pass on Jerry's passion for the welding industry. The scholarship will help individuals pursue a degree in the welding technology field.
